WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1896,
at 4 P. M.— The design for the statue, which will be the first of Edgar Alian Poe to be erected in America, has been accepted from medals by William Ordway Part-ridge, the sculptor, and he will devote his energies to its completion during the next year.

I saw the model which was accepted next year.

I saw the model which was accepted by the Shakespeare Society last week at Mr. Partridge's studio yesterday. Mr. Partridge has followed the existing portraits of Poe very closely, but he has been much aided in his work by a deacription by Mrs. Helen Richmond, of Lowell, Mass, an old sweetheart of the poet, to whom the verses "To Helen" were written.

The poet is represented as sitting in an armchair, in what is said to have been at 4 P. M.—

1. FOUR DWELLINGS on east line of Paye, between Accommodation and Lownders streets. Dwellings contain three rooms each. One lot fronts 25 feet, the other three have a joint frontage of 35 feet. Each house and lot to be sold separately.

HE WILL ONLY PRESENT IT. Major Otey Will Not Ask That Lee Camp's Protest Be Printed.

House of Representatives, United States. Washington, D. C. February 3, 1896. Captain J. Taylor Stration, Adjutant Lee

Captain J. Taylor Stration, Adjutant Lee Camp;
Dear Sir.—Your letter of January 27th and the resolutions of Lee Camp were received after my return from Lynchburg.
While in Lynchburg I saw in the press that the resolutions had been passed by your camp, and that they would be forwarded to me, with the request that I present them to the House of Representatives. Knowing that I would be detained some days in Lynchburg, I wrote to General Peyton Wise apprising him of my detention in order that any delay on my part might be understood, and if I remember correctly, I expressed my willingness to present the resolutions to the House. On reaching here, however, I find your letter requesting that I have them read before the House and printed in the Record. A letter from General Wise reread before the House and printed in the Record. A letter from General Wise re-ceived also since my return here clearly indicates that the desire is that I ask unanimous consent for the resolutions to be read and printed in the Record at once.

As the bill (No. 1878), which I presented, has not been read in the House, nor been printed in the Record; and as the considerations which induced me to offer it and the arguments in support of them have not been given to the House or to the committee, and such privileges were not even asked, I cannot be expected to ask or concur in action for your resolutions more favorable to them than io my own measure and the views I entertain in support of it. I think that your resolutions, as well as all others relative to the bill, whether in favor of or against it, should take the same course, I am opinion handed down was that by Judge it, should take the same course. I am still ready to present the resolutions in the House in precisely the same way in which I presented the bill-viz., without saying a word about it. If, however, you prefer that some other member present the resolutions, I will deliver them to whomsoever you may direct. Very respectfully, your shedlent servant, PETER J. OTEY.

The members of the other patriotic societies of this city will be specially invited to attend. The public patriotic societies of this city will be specially invited to attend. The public also will be admitted. A rure treat awaits all who may be present.

If the ladies determine to occupy the evening of the 22d with their exercises in connection with their Confederate connection with their Confederate useum, the Sons of the American Revo-tion will take another day-probably the lution will take another day—probably the dist.

At their meeting last Monday evening the Virginia Sons of the American Revolution invited the National Sons of the American Revolution to hold their next annual congress (the 30th of April) in Richmond. If they accept, which is highly probable, they will be entertained in some suitable manner at the splendid Jefferson Hotel. Bringing such a body of prominent men from more than thirty States of the Union will be a great benefit to our city, and many of our citizens have liberally offered to assist in providing the means for entertaining them here.

BULLET FOR AN ACTRESS.

Fired at a Stage-Door by Another Woman. (New York Sun.)
A pistol-shot, fired in front of the stage entrance of Daly's Theatre, on west Twenty-ninth street, close to Sixth avebrought a crowd, who found a very excited young woman struggling with a man young woman had darted into the side door of the corner saloon as the crowd began to run toward the place. George Handley, a special officer em-ployed in Lyric Hall, heard the shot, ran o the struggling man and woman, and seeing no policeman in sight, grabbed them, and after wrenching the revolver away from the woman, told her and her companion that they were under arrest. "But this woman is my wife," explained the man. "Yes; I'm his wife," the woman cried, "You can explain at the station-house," said the special officer, as he started with his prisoners to the west Thirtieth-Streat Station. The woman began to weep on the way to the police-station, but neither she ner her companion offered any explanations.

neither she ner her companion offered any explanations.

At the station-house Handley told what he had seen and done, and produced the revolver. One chamber had been fired, and the rest were loaded.

The woman and her companion refused to make any statement to Sergeant Shire, except to give their names. The man said he was John Dowd, an actor, living at 12 west Twenty-tourth street, and the woman, he said, was his wife, Henrietta, an actress, whose stage name is Harriet Weens. Dowd said he was employed at Daly's. would do well to call and inspect the As they refused to say who fired the shot or why they were struggling for the weapon, Sergeant Shire was about to lock them both up as suspicious persons, them both up as suspicious persons, when a young woman and an elderly man entered the station-house.

"There she is," Mrs. Dowd said to her husband, as she stepped toward the young woman. The elderly man stepped in front of the young woman he was with, and said, pointing at Mrs. Dowd:

"What did you shoot at my daughter for." CASHMERE, IMPERIAL AND STORM

"How did it happen, then?" asked Shire.

"She sent in for me. I was on the stage of Daly's Theatre, and as soon as I came out of the stage door there was a shot. I don't know whether it was meant for me or not," explained Mrs. Marion. "Well, do you want to make a complaint?" asked the Sergeant.

"Certainly, she will make a complaint," said the Professor. Then turning to his daughter he said:

"If any one shot at me I certainly would press the complaint." THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE SCOTTISH RITE ASSOCIATION will be held at the office of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, 1212 east Main street, on TUES-DAY, February II, 1895, at 12 o'clock, H. "You are not going to make a complaint against me, are you Miss Swala?" asked Mrs. Dowd, dramaticany.

"I don't know," replied Mrs. Marion.
"I don't know what it is all about. I haven't had a chance to talk to you yet."

"Were you hurt?" the Sergeant asked Mrs. Marion.

"No, nothing but my feelings," ste answered.

"How about a wife's feelings," sales.

"No, nothing but my answered.
"How about a wife's feeling?" arked Mrs. Dowd.
"You don't mean to incinuate that there is anything wrong with the character of my child, do you?" demanded the Professor, turning on Mrs. Dowd. "Why, I have brought her up from an infent, and I know her every act, and there is not a better woman on the stage to-day." Swain was asked to be quiet, and then his daughter decided that she would appear as the complainant against Mrs. Dowd when the latter is arraigned in Jefferson Market Court this morning. Mrs. Dowd was locked up on a charge of felonious assault, and her husband, not being implicated in the shooting, was allowed to go.

He refused to tell how he came to bring his wife to the theatre. He is employed there, according to Manager Dorney, as a supernumerary. The pelice think that his wife was lealous of him, and that he took her down to the cheatre so that she could talk with Mrs. Marion, and could see for herself that he was not unduly friendly with her.

Mrs. Marion wouldn't talk to the reporters, but her father would. He said she was a great actress, and was now getting £50 a week at Daly's. When asked how he got his title of professor, Mr. Swain said he was a professor of art.

His daughter is the wife of keorge Marion, the whistler of Hoyt's company, and is billed under her real name, Marian, though better known as Lillian Swain. She has been in Daly's company for a year or more. She played Puck in "A Mudsummer Night's Dream." and is booked for that character when Daly's company opens at the Grand Operatouse. 'How about a wife's feeling?" asked by well-known vocalists.
